Mr Tom McCabe MSP
Minister for Finance and Public Service Reform

We, the Local Government Boundary Commission for Scotland, present our proposals for future electoral arrangements for Stirling Council area resulting from our review of local government electoral arrangements as required by section 4 (1) of the Local Governance (Scotland) Act 2004.

In accordance with the provisions of section 18(3) of the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973, as amended, copies of our report, together with illustrative maps, are being sent to Stirling Council with a request that the report and maps are made available for public inspection at their offices. In addition copies of our report and maps in the form of PDF images on CDROM are being sent to those who received a copy of our consultation letter. Further, those who made representations during the 12-week public consultation exercise have been informed that the report has been published.

Part 1 Background

Origin of the Review

1. The Local Governance (Scotland) Act 2004 introduced proportional representation for local authority elections. As a consequence, we were required to review electoral arrangements for all local authorities in Scotland for the elections due to take place in May 2007. This Report presents our findings and recommendations resulting from the review of Stirling Council area called for by section 4(1) of the 2004 Act.

The Local Governance (Scotland) Act 2004

2. The 2004 Act made a number of changes to the existing legislation, the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973, as amended. These changes are set out at Appendix A. However, some of the changes have a particular impact on the review process and it is perhaps worth noting the following provisions:

- at least 2 months before taking any steps to inform other persons of our draft proposals, or any interim decision not to make proposals, we should inform the Council of our proposals (or any decision not to make proposals); and
- before informing any other person of our initial draft proposals, we should take into consideration any representation made by the Council during the period of 2 months beginning on the day on which the Council was informed of our initial draft proposal.

3. Schedule 6 to the 1973 Act, as amended, was further amended by the 2004 Act so that:

- at 1(2), the number calculated by dividing the number of local government electors in each electoral ward of a local government area by the number of councillors to be returned in that ward shall be, as nearly as may be, the same; and
- at 1(3)(b), any local ties which would be broken by the fixing of any particular boundary but if, in any case, there is a conflict between those criteria, greater weight shall be given to the latter.

4. The full text of the Schedule 6 rules as amended is set out at Appendix D.

Commencement of the 2004 Act

5. The Minister for Finance and Public Services signed the first Commencement Order in relation to the Local Governance (Scotland) Act 2004 on 19 August 2004. As a consequence, Sections 4(1) to (4), 5(a) to (c) and (f) (Reviews of electoral arrangements) and Section 6 (Interpretation of Part 1) of the 2004 Act came into force on 20 August 2004. The Commencement Order also stated that, in exercising the functions conferred under the provisions referred to above, Scottish Ministers and the Commission should act on the assumption that the provisions of Part 1 of the 2004 Act are in force for all purposes.

Directions from Scottish Ministers

6. On 30 August 2004, Scottish Ministers issued Directions to us in exercise of the powers conferred by Section 18(2A) and 18(2B) of the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973, as amended. The Directions apply during the current review to any consultation conducted by us in accordance with Section 18(2)(a) of the 1973 Act, with the Council of any local government area affected by a review under Part II of that Act. A copy of these Directions is at Appendix B.

7. Amongst other things, the Directions required us to inform each Council, within 14 days of the date of the Directions, in writing, in a letter sent by recorded delivery addressed to the Chief Executive, of the:

- timetable we proposed for the consultation;
- timetable we proposed for the review;
- general approach we proposed to adopt in formulating proposals for ward boundaries;
- information we would like to have available to use in formulating our proposals;
- assistance which each Council would be asked to render to us in the process of review; and
- such other matters we felt appropriate.

8. On 30 August 2004, Scottish Ministers similarly issued Directions to Councils that they should cooperate with us in the conduct of our review and, in particular, that they should:

- establish and maintain an ongoing dialogue which, where appropriate, may include meetings with us;
- take all reasonable steps to ensure that any views expressed, or purporting to be expressed, by or on behalf of the Council to us are accurate;
- provide us with all such information as we may reasonably request; and
- provide us with all such information that the Council considered relevant, including any proposals or ideas a Council may have in relation to new ward boundaries, or otherwise in relation to the formulation of our proposals.

9. A copy of the Directions to Councils is set out at Appendix C.

Announcement of our Review

10. We announced the start of our review of electoral arrangements in a letter to the Chief Executive of Stirling Council dated 6 September 2004. With regard to our initial consultation, we informed the Chief Executive that paragraph 7 (subject to paragraph 9) of the Ministerial Directions to us mentioned above stipulated that we should meet with the Council no later than 12 weeks from the date of our letter. We were required to offer each Council two dates for such a meeting and that such a meeting should take place during the Council's ordinary working hours.

11. We proposed that our meeting with Stirling Council should take place on either 15 September 2004 at 14:00 hrs or 29 September 2004 at 14:00 hrs. We asked the Council to inform us of any other dates within the 12-week period determined by the Directions which should be avoided in the event of our initial dates being unsuitable. We noted that we expected that meetings would be held at the Council's offices but offered, if necessary, to accommodate a meeting at our offices in Edinburgh.

12. With regard to the proposed meeting, we informed the Chief Executive that we would be represented by a Commissioner accompanied by a member or members of our Secretariat. We asked for facilities to be made available which would allow us to make a short presentation to provide background information and to illustrate how we proposed to undertake the review.

13. With our letter we enclosed an outline timetable (Appendix E) which set out the main stages for our review. We also set out details of the general approach which we intended to adopt in considering how revised electoral wards suitable for returning 3 or 4 elected members might be constructed within the terms of the statutory rules, whilst seeking better to reflect local perceptions of natural communities where possible and practicable to do so. We set out our proposal to use information from the July 2004 electoral register as the base electorate for our review and our intention to make available to the Council geographic information systems (GIS) data files containing counts of electors for each postcode within the Council area which would facilitate spatial analysis of these data.

14. Bearing in mind the importance we attached to perceptions of community focus and our concept of the contribution that this focus might make to the delineation of more stable boundaries in the longer term, we asked the Council to identify and map what it considered to be the boundaries between communities within its area. We made it clear that we were particularly interested in such boundaries being identified within contiguous built-up areas, such settlements, or groups of settlements, being likely to merit more than one multi-member ward. We also asked for information which would allow us to make a forecast of the electorate within the Council area at 2009, as required by the legislation.

15. We asked the Council to nominate an official as the recognised point of contact so that the close working relationship necessary to conduct a successful review could be established. We asked if the Council would confirm whether the locations used at the last review in 1996/1998 to deposit material for public consultation remained appropriate and if they would provide details of alternatives where necessary. We also asked for a list of the newspapers circulating within the Council area normally used for the publication of Statutory Notices.

16. We asked the Chief Executive if, prior to our proposed meeting, we could be informed of any particular issues that the Council might wish to discuss with us.

General Issues

17. Three developments have made it possible for us to reconsider the process and practices of reviewing local government electoral arrangements and of accurately defining the boundaries of proposed wards. Firstly, the availability of computer-based geographic information systems (GIS) provides us with the ability to analyse a variety of localised data and then to develop and explore options for revised electoral ward geography. Secondly, the GIS technology, used in conjunction with Ordnance Survey (OS) large-scale digital data also allows for the boundaries of wards to be more precisely defined than has hitherto been possible – thus obviating the need for written boundary descriptions. Thirdly, the Representation of the People (Scotland) (Amendment) Regulations 2002 provide us, for the first time, with formal access to information contained in electoral registers and, importantly, allow us to obtain that information in an electronic format which can be managed and spatially examined by means of our GIS facilities.

18. Use of the GIS technology, large-scale digital mapping and electoral register data in examining, reviewing and defining ward boundaries is outlined below.

Definition of Electoral Ward Boundaries

19. Defining ward boundaries can raise particular difficulties in areas where changes to the built geography are not reflected on available paper maps. In many parts of Scotland such changes are now occurring more rapidly than in the past, with considerable consequences for our boundary review work.

20. The introduction of OS MasterMap® large-scale digital mapping affords the opportunity for the first time for electoral ward boundaries to be defined by means of unique topographical identifiers (TOID®s) which accurately identify the position of the natural and built features depicted by the large-scale digital data. Accordingly, it is possible to identify the boundaries of electoral wards electronically by directly linking the line of any boundary to, for the most part, the OS TOID®s.

21. All Councils in Scotland now have full access to OS MasterMap®, as do all central government bodies, agencies and government-sponsored organisations with GIS facilities. Generally, all such bodies using large-scale digital mapping have a preference for boundary information to be defined against that background.

22. As a consequence:

- all of the proposed ward boundaries we recommend are directly related to digital information contained in the Topography layer of OS MasterMap®, which was supplied to us by OS in July 2004, except where circumstances demand that a line between 2 unconnected TOID®s is necessary, for example, in crossing a road or river;
- where part of a ward boundary and the boundary of the Council area are coterminous, that part of the ward boundary is the boundary of the Council area as depicted in the Administrative Boundaries theme of the Topography Layer of OS MasterMap® as supplied to us by OS in July 2004; and
- where applicable, the coastal boundary of a ward is defined by means of the low water mark springs as depicted in a large-scale digital data set (prepared on our behalf by OS from its large-scale digital information) except in areas where, historically, all or part of the Council's seaward boundary presently has a recognised off-shore definition.

23. We are aware that, at the time of this review, OS is undertaking a Positional Accuracy Improvement initiative (PAI) and that it does not expect to complete this work in Scotland until March 2006. Further, the results of the PAI will not be fully incorporated into the OS large-scale digital maps until later in that year. Even after this detailed work by OS, the position of residential property existing at the time of our review will remain within the ward as defined by our review. This provides better long-term accuracy than would be provided by written boundary descriptions.

24. Drawing these matters together, we have worked on the reasonable assumption that the boundaries of wards will be more accurately defined than has been possible at previous reviews and that any future dispute over the line of a particular boundary will be capable of resolution by reference to deposited copies of the ward boundaries in digital form in conjunction with deposited copies of the OS MasterMap® data (Topography layer and Administrative Boundaries theme of the Topography layer and coastline data) mentioned at paragraph 22 above.

Electorate Data used in the Review

25. As mentioned at paragraph 17 above, in preparation for this review, we investigated and tested the potential offered by GIS technology in the preparation of proposals for revised electoral arrangements. To make fullest use of GIS systems in our review activities it is necessary to have the basic numerical data, for the most part electorate information, in a format which allows them to be directly associated with digital mapping showing the underlying geography to which it relates. Ideally, our preference would have been to link addresses in the electoral register directly to the background geography by means of a geo-referenced address database. However, in the absence of a definitive national address database, and being aware of the shortcomings of available address-based GIS databases, we researched the potential for making use of postcode geography maintained by the General Register Office for Scotland (GRO(S)) as a means of identifying the number of electors on the electoral register at a level of resolution low enough for us to develop and consider proposals for the boundaries of revised electoral wards. Initial tests, involving matching the postcodes for addresses on the electoral register with the GRO(S) postcode geography files, indicated that we could successfully identify electors on the electoral register at the small-user postcode which contained their address and, as a consequence, establish accurate counts of electorate for these postcodes.

26. The availability of up-dated electoral register information on a monthly basis allowed us to associate information on the electoral register at July 2004 with the most up-to-date postcode geography available from GRO(S) (August 2004) thus minimising the potential for mismatches between the two data sets. As a consequence, at the start of our review in Stirling Council area, of the 63,985 electors on the register at July 2004, 63,982 (99.99 percent) could be identified within the postcode geography held in our GIS. The residual number of 3 electors were contained in 1 postcode which, as far as we could ascertain, was newly allocated by the Post Office and, as such, had not yet appeared in the latest Post Office Address Files which GRO(S) uses to update and maintain its postcode geography system. We were, therefore, confident that postcoded electorate data for Stirling Council area could be used as the initial building blocks for reviewing electoral arrangements in that area.

Part 2 The Review in Stirling Council Area

Meeting with the Stirling Council

1. Our initial meeting with Stirling Council took place on 29 September 2004 at 14:00 hrs at the headquarters offices of the Council at Stirling. We were represented at that meeting by Richard Millham who was accompanied by Andrew Inglis and Andrew Gunn from our Secretariat.
2. We made a short illustrated presentation which set out the background to the review and the nature of our GIS systems, which provided us with the facility quickly and accurately to prepare proposals and examine alternatives. We demonstrated that the GIS allowed us to look closely at relevant matters such as the geography and topography, settlement patterns and communication links within Council areas. We explained that, as required by the Schedule 6 Rules, we needed information from the Council on house building, demolitions and known institutional development for the 5-year period to 2009 in order to form a view on the number of electors in the Council area at that time. We also invited Councils to provide information which would help us define areas recognised locally as communities. We set out our proposed timetable for the review, which envisaged 7 stages with completion by August 2006. A copy of the outline timetable is set out at Appendix E.
3. Following our presentation, we answered some general questions on matters relating to the review process. We also invited, and took careful note of, various views expressed in relation to the review in the Council area.

Concluded View of the Council

4. The Ministerial Directions (Appendix B) issued on 30 August 2004 stated that each Council should, if it so desired, submit its concluded views on review matters to the Commission within one month of the date of our initial meeting. Stirling Council submitted its concluded view to us on 25 October 2004 in the form of a letter from the Chief Executive:

- emphasising the importance of identifying perceived natural communities and recognising that aggregating existing wards might not address local perceptions of communities; and
- suggesting that, in the rural areas, existing wards would lend themselves to being aggregated into larger wards but that in other areas a combination of existing wards, primary school catchment areas and Community Council areas would more closely reflect natural communities.

5. We noted the Council's comments together with maps and information provided to us at the initial meeting.

Aggregation of Existing Wards

6. In compliance with the legislation as amended, our Secretariat set out for us options for creating new 3 or 4 member wards by combining existing single member wards. Aggregating existing wards did not permit full consideration to be given to the comments made by the Council in relation to local geographies. Following that approach created a division within Bridge of Allan as well as producing several boundaries within Stirling which neither followed easily recognisable features on the ground nor recognised local communities as identified by the Council. In the south of the Council area a ward straddled the M80 and also associated parts of Stirling with a number of small rural settlements.

7. After consideration of these and all the other relevant matters, we were not persuaded that our initial proposals should be based on a simple aggregation of existing wards. In particular we concluded that:

- alternative proposals could be developed which better acknowledged the local geographies of the Council area, including the areas covered by Community Councils;
- with the exception of Stirling, it was possible to avoid the division of the Council's urban settlements between two or more wards;
- within Stirling better boundaries could be identified which followed easily recognisable features on the ground.

8. As a consequence of our decision, our Secretariat then developed alternative designs for revised wards using the methodology made known to the Council and bearing in mind all of the observations provided to us in its concluded view.

Initial Proposals

9. Our Secretariat's proposals followed a combination of clearly defined ground features and Community Council boundaries and was broadly in tune with a configuration which had been developed by Council officials.

10. After considering our Secretariat's proposals for Wards 4 and 6, particularly in the vicinity of the Wallace Monument, we agreed that the boundary should be altered to align more fully with that of the Causewayhead Community Council area. All of the electorate in the area were allocated to Ward 4 with a consequent decrease in the divergence from parity in both wards.

11. Our Secretariat's more westerly boundary between Wards 1 and 3 was acceptable in terms of geography, electorate and in alignment to local Community Council boundaries. However, we required a revision in the vicinity of Ben Lomond in order to identify a more suitable alignment with easily recognisable ground features.

12. We concluded that, subject to a small number of minor amendments which had no impact on the electorate, our Secretariat's proposals should be adopted as our initial proposals.

13. In the course of our deliberations we took fully into account the Schedule 6 rules, and the requirement placed upon us that we make recommendations which, in our view, are in the interests of effective and convenient local government.

14. Following full discussion, it was agreed that our initial proposals for Stirling Council area should comprise 7 electoral wards of which 6 would be 3-member wards and 1 would be a 4-member ward as follows:

Ward Number a	Forecast Electorate b	Number of Elected Members c	Average Electorate per Member d	Divergence from Parity (%) e
1	9,800	3	3,267	6
2	8,700	3	2,900	-6
3	9,030	3	3,010	-3
4	9,020	3	3,007	-3
5	9,020	3	3,007	-3
6	12,530	4	3,133	1
7	9,900	3	3,300	7

Informing the Council of our Initial Proposals

15. We submitted our initial proposals to Stirling Council on 7 March 2005 illustrated by maps showing the boundaries of the proposed wards. We also provided details of the forecast of electorate for each ward at 2009, a GIS file containing the boundaries of each ward and a CDROM containing maps of the proposed ward boundaries in PDF image format. (A GIS file containing the GRO(S) postcode geography showing the 2004 electorate together with the expected new build/demolition etc data and the electorate for each postcode at 2009 arising from these components of change was also available to the Council to assist with the review process.)

16. We asked the Council to provide its views on our initial proposals within two months as specified in the legislation. Contact was maintained with the Council at officer level throughout this initial consultation period.

The Stirling Council Response

17. We received Stirling Council's written response to our initial proposals on 6 May 2005.

18. The Council agreed with our initial proposals subject to two amendments in regard to ward boundaries:

- the boundary between Wards 3 and 4 should follow Back Walk because this revision would reflect community focus in the King's Park area; and
- the boundary between Wards 5 and 6 should follow the current ward boundary - the M9 motorway - rather than diverting to the Glasgow/Stirling railway line because this separated electorate resident in the farms situated between the M9 and the railway from the Bridge of Allan community with whom they should be associated.

19. The Council also provided maps and GIS shapefiles for the two areas proposed for amendment as well as names for the 7 wards and an alternative ward numbering sequence.

Consideration of the Council's Response to the Initial Proposals

20. We noted that the Council was content with our proposed configuration of wards for the Council area subject to the two minor amendments. In considering these we agreed that both better reflected community focus, that both involved small numbers of electors which had no impact on electoral parity, and that the boundaries proposed followed easily identifiable ground features. Accordingly, we agreed to amend our initial proposals as suggested by the Council.

21. We considered the ward names suggested by the Council as well as the revised ward numbering sequence and agreed to adopt both as our own.

Provisional Proposals

22. Our provisional proposals for revised electoral arrangements in Stirling Council area made provision for a Council of 22 elected members in 6 wards each returning 3 members and one ward returning 4 members as follows:

Ward		Forecast Electorate	Number of Elected Members	Average Electorate per Member	Divergence from Parity(%)
Number a	Name b
1	Trossachs and Teith	9,010	3	3,003	-3
2	Forth and Endrick	9,810	3	3,270	6
3	Dunblane and Bridge of Allan	12,550	4	3,138	2
4	Castle	8,980	3	2,993	-3
5	Stirling West	9,050	3	3,017	-2
6	Stirling East	9,900	3	3,300	7
7	Bannockburn	8,690	3	2,897	-6

23. We published our provisional proposals for revised electoral arrangements in Stirling Council area on 26 May 2005. These differed from our initial proposals in that they reflected the two small amendments proposed by the Council and, in addition, contained minor changes necessary to fix the proposed boundaries to the OS MasterMap® TOID®s (see Part 1 paragraphs 19-24).

24. A statutory notice, detailing where our provisional proposals had been deposited for the public consultation and setting out the arrangements we had made for receiving representations, was published in the Stirling Observer, the Oban Times and the Milngavie and Bearsden Herald. Copies of the documents and maps deposited for the public consultation were also placed on our web site. A short news release was issued on 25 May 2005. The Council was also provided with copies of the documentation and maps on CDROM which it was free to distribute on a wider basis. Further, we provided the Council with GIS files containing the proposed ward boundary details.

25. All MPs and MSPs with a constituency interest were provided with copies of our provisional proposals on CDROM as were the headquarters organisations of the political parties represented at the Scottish Parliament. We also informed the Scottish Parliament Information Centre, Community Councils, Electoral Registration Officers and the Electoral Commission of our provisional proposals.

26. We asked that representations should be made to us within the 12-week period ending on 18 August 2005. We informed all concerned that representations could be made by writing to our Secretary at 3 Drumsheugh Gardens Edinburgh, EH3 7QJ, by email at stirling@lgbc-scotland.gov.uk by fax at 0131 538 7511 or by using the representations pro forma accessible on our web site at www.lgbc-scotland.gov.uk. Those making representations were asked to provide their full postal address including postcode.

Representations

27. Three representations were received during the statutory public consultation. The main points raised by the parties are summarised below:

Councillor

Councillor Lonsdale requested that Carron Valley be included in the proposed south-west rural ward (Forth and Endrick) as the area was distinctly rural, had similar issues of concern to those of other rural communities, now had its own Community Council, and fell within the Council's rural south-west community planning forum.

Community Council

Carron Valley and District Community Council objected to the inclusion of Carron Valley in Ward 5 (Stirling West). It was distinctly rural in character and had specific rural concerns, had its own Community Council, did not want to lose its developing community identity and was within the Council's rural area committee planning forum. It should be within Ward 2 (Forth and Endrick).

Other Representation

A letter raised various issues including: divergence from parity of electorate in the proposed new wards; the lack of connection of the proposed Ward 4 (Castle) and Ward 6 (Stirling East); the under-representation in both these wards; the proposal of boundaries which ignored a number of natural boundaries; and the length of the statutory consultation period which was considered insufficient.

Consideration of Representations

28. In considering the representations concerning the Carron Valley Community Council area we recognised that the recently revised Community Council boundary was drawn along the line of the M80 and M9 motorways. There were no easy transport linkages to, for example, Gargunnoch, Kippen, Drymen and Balfron which supported a notion of local ties with these communities. Most of the electorate within the Community Council area were properly associated with their neighbours in the adjoining predominantly built up area. The removal of the Community Council area from Ward 5 would adversely affect electoral parity in both Ward 2 and Ward 5. In these circumstances we were not persuaded that the configuration of Wards 2 and Ward 5 as set out in our provisional proposals should be amended.

29. We considered all of the matters raised by the member of the public in respect of our proposed arrangements for Stirling. With regard to equality of representation in the 2 wards highlighted, we considered that the divergences from electoral parity were acceptable within the terms of the legislation. We were not persuaded that the changes proposed to the boundaries achieved any improvement. We noted in passing that these changes could not be accommodated without further significant consequential changes to the boundaries that we had proposed elsewhere in the Council area and to which no objection had been taken. The length of the consultation periods was not a matter over which we had any control. Drawing these matters together, we were not persuaded that our provisional proposals should be amended as suggested in this representation.
